NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Not even the hitherto invincible Carl Owen Hubbell could silence the heavy artillery of the Yankees today, with the result that the lingering World Series hopes of the Giants came tumbling down in a heap around the shattered remains of the celebrated southpaw's winning streak.

Before an overflow crowd of 66,669 fans at the vast Yankee stadium, shattering all series attendance records for the second straight day, the American league champions beat Hubbell and the Giants, 5 to 2, for their third straight conquest and moved rapidly in the direction of the world championship.

The home run king of the majors, Captain Henry Louis Gehrig, of the Yankees, beat the king of the southpaw pitchers with a home run into the right-field bleachers in the third inning. This circuit clout, delivered as Gehrig caught hold of a high "hook" wit, Red Rolfe on base, climaxed a concerted attack based, climaxed four runs in two innings and clinched the ball game.

Hubbell Battered.
Far from the peak of effectiveness he reached in halting the Yankees in the rain opening day, Hubbell was tattered for a total of eight hits in the seven frames he worked before giving up to a pinch-hitter. The great southpaw lacked his customary brilliant control and his famous "screw" ball held none of the baffling mysteries for the Yankees' "murderers' row" that it did last Wednesday.

Thus the Yankees, who had their own World Series streak of 12 consecutive games in the air, were simple revenge by handing the ace of the Giants his first setback since last July 13, when he dropped a close

Scott, the winner last week of the England-to-Johannesburg air derby, set the mark for the Australia flight with Black in the England-to-Australia air derby of October, 1934.

Rail Union Workers To Follow Roosevelt

DALLAS, Oct. 4.—(AP)—George M. Harrison, of Cincinnati, chairman of the Railroad Labor Executives Association, said "Railroad workers will follow Roosevelt and help elect him" in a railroad employees day address at the Texas Centennial here today.

"Railroad labor in this nation learned its lesson in 1920 when Harding was elected," Harrison said.

GEORGE HARSH, PAL NABBED BY POLICE IN HIT-RUN CRASH

Bellwood Camp Prisoner,
Posing Under Assumed
Name, Is Identified by Constitution Reporter.

An automobile accident last night involving a state highway truck and a private auto revealed that George Harsh, thrill bandit, serving a life sentence at Bellwood prison camp, was at liberty in the city last night with another convict from the same camp.

Harsh was one of the men who, in 1928, staged numerous holdups in Atlanta, riding in city streets shooting out street lights with a .45-caliber automatic pistol and finally becoming involved in holdup shootings in which two men were killed. He has been at Bellwood camp for a year and is now an orderly and trusty.

Following the accident involving the highway truck, in which Harsh was a passenger, he was said by police to have assaulted and beaten a passenger of the other car. At police headquarters, where he was taken when finally captured by officers, he posed under an assumed name until he was identified by T. K. Jones, police reporter of The Constitution.

Fellow Prisoner in Truck.
Police reported Harsh was riding with Mac (Chicken) Chastain, another convict, serving five years for automobile theft. They were driving east on Baker street. At Ivy street, the truck was in collision with another machine driven by J. W. Payne, 603 West Peachtree street. With Payne were Jack Dorsey, 21, of 1019 West Peachtree street; Bill Lytle, 22, of 603 West Peachtree street, and J. A. Spruill Jr., of 1019 West Peachtree street.

The Payne car was disabled temporarily and Dorsey and Lytle commandeered another machine. They finally spotted the highway truck out of gas on Piedmont avenue, near Baker street, they reported. Subsequent events revealed that Chastain

Cobb Says: He Hears Horses Laughing

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Oct. 4.—Late yesterday was tried before a judge for biting a boy. And another judge was appealed to, that he have an elephant condemned to die. So someone proves that, through many centuries, animals were accused of high crimes—dogs, rats, pigs, oxen, roosters, storks, also snakes, spiders, grasshoppers, dolphins, locusts, gadflies, eels, and, being convicted, were burned, flayed, hanged, destroyed by slow torture.

But think of the charges on which the so-called brutes might condemn mankind—offenses of which they rarely or never have been guilty—murder; slaughter of weaker things for love of slaughter; deliberate wanton destruction of natural beauties; wars; hunt rational cause; unnecessary greed; bearing false witness; neglect of our own young; drunkenness; slothfulness; bigotry; intolerance.

And can you imagine the creatures behaving during a political campaign as humans do? It's enough to make a horse laugh. I seem to hear horses laughing right now.

Jesse Isidor Straus Succumbs To Pneumonia at N. Y. Home

Forebears of Former Ambassador to France Lived in Georgia.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Jesse Isidor Straus, 64, who recently retired as United States ambassador to France, died today. Pneumonia was given as the immediate cause of death.

Mr. Straus, who retired from his Paris post in August due to continued ill health against which he long had struggled, died in his New York city apartment at 8:11 a. m. (Atlanta time). As early as last July the strain of his work abroad was manifested when he fainted during a Bastille day parade in Paris.

He was appointed by President Roosevelt in March of 1933, and was succeeded by William C. Bullitt, who had been ambassador to Russia. In a letter dated August 18 Straus gave up his portfolio, and the resignation was announced officially some days later at Washington.

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday morning at Temple Emanuel on Fifth avenue.

His career before entering the diplomatic service had been that of one of the world's great merchants. He came out of Harvard University in 1903 to begin as a clerk in the Hanover National Bank here. In 1906 he became connected with R. H. Macy & Company, the department store, and by 1919 was its president—a post he held until accepting the Paris assignment.

The survivors are the widow, the former Miss Irma S. Nathan; a daughter, Mrs. Robert L. Levy; two sons, Jack Isidor and Robert Kenneth Straus, all of New York city.

Mr. Straus was born here on June 25, 1872. His parents were Isidor and Ida Blum Straus. His business connections have included banking and insurance concerns. He was a Democrat and a member of the board of overseers of Harvard College and of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

MADRID REPORTS BUILDING IN SOUTH FLANKING VICTORY IS BEST IN 6 YEARS

Food Shortage Menaces Capital as All-Critical Siege Gets Underway.

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press.)
MADRID, Oct. 5.—(Monday)—The war ministry declared early today government forces had captured the town of Maqueda, an important highway intersection 45 miles southwest of Madrid.

The government advance from Santa Cruz Del Retamar, the war ministry asserted, brought the Madrid forces within a mile or two of Santa Olalla, their former base, and cut off the Fascists in the Toledo sector from other insurgent forces to the west and north.

(If the war ministry's statement is borne out, the government forces have made their first important offensive since the Fascists began to tighten the ring around Madrid.)

The Spanish Socialist government hastened convoys of food into Madrid yesterday to meet a shortage and appealed to the provinces for more armed defenders, acknowledging by its action that the all-critical siege of the capital is about to begin.

Reliable reports, which the government would not confirm, said that evacuation of the city had begun. Children, women and militia wounded were being taken to refuge deemed more safe from the threatened attack of insurgent Fascists, these reports said.

Convoys of food were arriving from the Levante region and were taken over by a committee, organized to distribute all supplies from the city hall. There was no danger of water shortage, the minister of public works announced.

With new conscriptions, the government claimed it now has an army of more than 100,000 men in the Madrid area. Nevertheless, the call for support was dispatched to the provinces and the war ministry reported several well-armed columns already had been provided.

"Kill Mosley!" the crowd shouted in derision for Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the Fascist group.

Nearly a half-million persons surged through the streets in the demonstration, it was estimated unofficially.

Police halted the planned Fascist parade, schedule to march through the heart of the Jewish quarter, after rioting broke out and threatened to spread with serious mob fighting.

The demonstrators erected barricades at many points along the route of the abandoned parade, and many gave the Communist salute as the Fascists assembled near walls of the ancient Tower of London. Police drew batons and charged.

Brickbats showered from rooftops.

Cuba Seizes Guns Cached for Revolt

HAVANA, Oct. 4.—(UP)—Surprise police raids today resulted in the arrest of two alleged leaders of Joven Cuba, youthful revolutionary organization and seizure of arms, explosives and ammunition which had been cached in preparation for an island-wide revolution October 12.

Jose Antonio Garcia and Mario Salabarría were arrested and police believed that today's raids, coupled with investigations during the past week, had resulted in seizure of about half the armaments secreted for the revolution.

Intense police activity continued, but more cautiously than formerly, due to the death of four persons yesterday in a gun battle in Santo Suarez suburb.

NEW FIGHT LOOMS ON CITY PAY HIKE

Beer Curfew Issue Also To Come Before Council at Meeting Today.

A second council battle over diversion of $35,000 in newly anticipated city revenues to reinstate 5 per cent of the 10 per cent cuts now being imposed on non-school municipal employees will feature the regular meeting of city council this afternoon.

Councilman Aubrey Milam and John A. White, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the city finance committee will reconvene the issue to the aldermanic board by serving notice they would move for reconsideration at today's session.

Beer Curfew Issue.
Among other major matters to face council will be a move by Councilman Alvin L. Richards to amend the beer and wine curfew ordinance providing a penalty of $100 or 30 days in the stockade for violation.

Under an ordinance passed at the last council session, beer and wine establishments operating outside the inner fire limits were ordered to close at midnight and remain closed until 6 a. m., unless a majority of the residents within a radius of 100 yards agreed that such establishments may remain open. Penalty for violation, under the ordinance, was revocation of the permit to sell such commodities.

Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant asserted the penalty was insufficient for enforcement, and ordered officers not to book cases after four operators were accused of violation. In the four cases were called in Recorder John L. Cone's division, the cases were dismissed under a Cone ruling that "evidentiary courts lacked jurisdiction or at least power to revoke licenses."

Richards has said he will ask council to amend the ordinance today.

Other Problems.
Among other principal matters to face council will be:

1. Recommendation of the sewer and purchasing committee and the Atlanta Engineering Company at a cost of $246,000.

2. A proposal by White seeking to get the state government to allow municipalities 20 per cent of the money collected from such areas in gasoline taxes, to be used for highways passing through them. White says the state provides no funds for maintenance of highways in populous centers.

3. Another White proposal that the Georgia assembly give power to municipalities to conduct their own internal affairs through passage of a home rule measure, thus eliminating charter restrictions for cities of the state.

4. A report by the city Democratic executive committee showing that candidates in the municipal primary were defeated 15 per cent of their entrance fees, amounting to $1,481.25, and that the total cost of the original primary and the runner was $10,024.67. A balance of $25,333 remains in the treasury, according to the report.

Woodring Promises To Guard Against War

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring declared today his every official act would be "in support of President Roosevelt's determination that this nation shall remain at peace and your sons and my sons shall not march forth to war."

Addressing a state-wide rally of Polish-American Democratic clubs in the city stadium the secretary said "Thank God we have in the White House today a man who stands first for peace for this great country of ours and secondly for the peace of the world and the peace of his people that this nation shall remain at peace."

Woodring urged support of the President in the election.

"I'm disgusted with all this talk about balancing the budget in Kansas," he continued. "I was Governor there before the present one. I had a balanced budget, and so did my predecessors. In fact, Kansas has had a balanced budget for the past 75 years."

Ekins Lap Ahead of Globe Racers; Kieran Takes Wrong Train in Italy

Official Rescues Reporter From Dilemma; Races by Automobile.

By LEO KIERAN.
(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

BOLOGNA, Italy, Oct. 4.—(By Wireless).—This reporter, having completed the first leg of his around-the-world trip from Lakehurst, N. J., to Frankfurt, Germany, behind schedule due to delay in the arrival of the dirigible Hindenburg, is setting forth today by automobile from Bologna to Brindisi, Italy, in an effort to connect with a scheduled flight to the east of Imperial Airways.

The series of difficulties arose when the Hindenburg, battling severe headwinds on the last night of her trip over the Atlantic, landed at Frankfurt at 3:15 p. m. Berlin time, Saturday, instead of noon as expected.

After our flight of 58 hours 2 minutes from Lakehurst, I obtained plane accommodations at Frankfurt for Basel, Switzerland. I left Basel last night by train for Milan, Italy, where I arrived this morning after an uneventful journey.

Kieran's Predicament.
The wagoner porter spoke a little English and helped me buy my ticket for a train which he said should land me at Brindisi at 3:30 a. m. tomorrow morning. Unfortunately, he did not know as much about traveling in Italy as I thought, for eventually I learned that the train was not due at Brindisi until two hours after the scheduled departure of the Imperial Airways plane on which I was to continue my around-the-world journey.

As soon as I ascertained this, I got off the train at Bologna and here I found myself in serious difficulties. In the first place, I could find no one who could speak English. Eventually, I was fortunate enough to run into an interpreter of the Compagnia Italiana Tourista, the official Italian travel agency, who rescued me from my predicament and took me under his wing. This man, Sergio Pedronzo, really saved the day for me, for he went far beyond the line of duty in his aid.

The language difficulty thus having been overcome, I still had to solve the problem of getting to Brindisi in time to catch the Imperial Airways plane. I soon found there was no train for Bologna that would get me there in time. Pedronzo called the air field to see whether I could charter a private plane, but was told it was impossible. I then got the Rome bureau of the New York Times on the telephone to see if a plane was available there.

10 Minutes to Decide.
By this time, however, it had grown so late that there were only 10 minutes left before the departure of the only train that could get me to Rome at a reasonable hour of the evening. As I wasn't certain of finding a plane at Rome either, I ruled out this possibility as too risky. The only alternative was to make a dash for it, a 600-mile automobile trip to Brindisi.

Pedronzo easily found a car and a driver willing to make the trip, but then I ran into my last difficulty. All my money was in traveler's checks, and I was unable to cash any of them as all the banks were closed, being Sunday. Pedronzo, however, again came to my rescue and decided to take a chance and cash them for me himself.

Thus, I am about to start on my automobile dash to Brindisi. The road there is said to be good and not very hilly. Therefore, I expect to make fairly good time, reaching Brindisi in 10 or 12 hours. Even so, I will not get there until the early hours of tomorrow morning.

Pair Arrested.
A few moments later County Radio Patrolmen J. T. Thornburg and R. E. Carroll arrived on the scene. They arrested Harsh and seized Chastain when he returned to the scene.

Neither man having been identified or recognized, they were taken to police headquarters, where Harsh gave the name of George Harris, 27, of Roswell, Ga. Chastain said he was H. B. Cheek, 28, giving no address.

Officers who recalled "Harris" face summoned Jones to see if the reporter could identify the prisoner. "Harris" identified.

As Jones walked to the cell, "Harris" reported to have said: "I played hell, didn't I? I guess the game is up now."

"It looks like it," Jones replied. Chastain was also identified and the names were changed on the police blotter.

Both were charged with suspicion of reckless driving, hit-and-run, and were marked, "hold as escapes from the Bellwood prison camp."

Harsh was captured with Richard Gallagher for the holdup killings and both men subsequently were sentenced to life imprisonment. Governor Talmadge recently refused commutation of their sentences.

Ed Tyree, head of Bellwood camp, when notified that Harsh and Chastain had been riding about the city, declared he didn't know the two prisoners were out.

He said Chastain only recently had been removed from the River convict camp and placed at Bellwood in order that he could visit his mother, who is ill. Tyree declared Chastain had been sent to see his mother, but always under guard.

The office carries with it the chairmanship of the commission and the title of mayor.

MOULTREE TO VOTE.
MOULTREE, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Voters will decide by straw ballot tomorrow whether to change the city charter to embrace a city manager form of government. Voting will be at the same time as the regular city election in which three councilmen, and four school commissioners are to be elected.

ICE LEADERS TO MEET.
ALBANY, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—W. R. Crossfield, of Griffin, president of the Georgia Ice Manufacturers Association, will preside at the annual meeting here Thursday. Among the principal speakers will be Harry L. Brown, of the State College of Agriculture, W. D. Martin, city health officer, and officials of the new Quabry Packing Plant here.

Woman Contestant, Delayed by Accident, Lands in Rome.

ATHENS, Oct. 4.—(UP)—A full lap ahead of his competitors in the 22,000-mile around-the-world air race between three New York newspaper writers, H. R. Ekins, of Scripps-Howard newspapers, arrived today from Vienna.

The big twin-engine Douglas airliner Flamingo, of the KLM—Dutch Royal Air Lines—landed at Dakhia airport at noon (4 a. m. Atlanta time) after flying 843 miles from Vienna in 5 hours 46 minutes.

The other racers—Dorothy Kilgallen, of International News Service, and Leo Kieran, of the New York Times—N. A. N. A. Service, were in Italy and planned to take an Imperial Airways plane from Brindisi for the orient at 6 a. m. (11 a. m. Atlanta time) tomorrow.

Miss Kilgallen reached Rome at 6:30 p. m. from Munich, by rail. Her train was 40 minutes late because of an accident and she barely had time to catch a train at 6:35 p. m. for Brindisi. One of the last coaches on her train from Munich caught fire from an overheated axle and had to be removed.

Newspapermen had expected to see Kieran on this train but could not find him.

Woman Not Tired.
Miss Kilgallen, dressed in black, said she was not tired despite the missing of her connections in Frankfurt, Germany, yesterday. She had planned, as had Ekins and Kieran—to catch a KLM-Lufthansa plane leaving Frankfurt at 11:30 a. m. for Rome. The dirigible Hindenburg, on which the three newspaper Magicians left Lakehurst at 11:17:27 p. m., September 30, was hours late because of storms over the north Atlantic causing all the racers to have to change their plans.

Ekins got a special KLM plane to Vienna, where he spent the night, and then flew on to Athens where he was spending tonight before boarding a KLM plane which left Amsterdam yesterday for the orient. This plane ordinarily spends the night on the Island of Rhodes, 270 miles southeast of here, but because of storms there which flooded the landing field, it was stopped here. It will fly non-stop to Alexandria, Egypt—about 646 miles—tomorrow.

Kieran got a special plane from Frankfurt to Basel, Switzerland, and enroute there for Milan, Rome and Brindisi. He must reach Brindisi by 6 a. m. Monday, local time, in order to catch the Imperial Airways plane at the marine airport for the orient.

The regular schedule of the KLM line calls for Ekins to arrive in Alexandria at 8:45 a. m. Monday and to depart at 9:15 a. m. for Gaza, Palestine, where the plane is due at 11:15 a. m. (3:15 a. m. Atlanta time). The schedule then continues through Baghdad and Basra, Iraq, (an overnight stop), to Dask, Persia; Karachi, British India; Jodhpur, in the Indian desert; and then through Allahabad, Calcutta, Rangoon, Burma; and Bangkok, Siam, to Penang, in British Malaya. At Penang he could connect with Imperial Airways for Hong Kong, China, whence he could get a steamer for Manila in time to catch the Pan-American Airways China Clipper leaving the Philippines capital at 2 a. m. local time, October 16, for San Francisco.

All the racers must make connections with the China Clipper to be successful.

ROBBERY IN DECATUR IS LAID TO SLAIN MAN

Three Others Held in Monroe After Wounding of Officer.

MONROE, Ga., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Chief of Police T. E. Dorsey today said a man shot and killed by Night Officer L. W. Howard Friday has been identified as Percy Otto Akins, 21, of Woodruff, S. C., one of four men sought by DeKalb county authorities in connection with a burglary Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. M. Kumpe in Decatur.

Officer Howard, who was wounded before shooting the man, was in a serious condition in the Walton county hospital, the chief said. His liver was ruptured and physicians gave him an 80 percent chance of survival.

The chief said three other men, also wanted in the DeKalb burglary, and who were with Akins, were being held pending the outcome of Officer Howard's injuries.

The men were listed by Dorsey as Richard C. Shaw, 45, half-brother of Mrs. Kumpe; Furman Ballew, 21, and W. T. McMillian, 50, all of Woodruff.

W. R. Wright, of Woodruff, positively identified the dead man as his stepson, Chief Dorsey said. He quoted Wright as saying he knew of the plan of the four men to rob Mrs. Kumpe's home and "begged Akins not to go along."

At Decatur, Department Clerk George Jackson, of the DeKalb county police, said burglary charges would be preferred against the men listed as Shaw, Ballew and McMillian, but efforts to obtain their custody would await the outcome of Howard's injuries.

He added witnesses had seen a "foreign car" parked a short distance from Mrs. Kumpe's home.

Chief Dorsey said Howard was shot by Akins as he approached a filling station where the four men had stopped. Although wounded, he opened fire and shot six times. The three survivors were taken into custody by Dorsey about three minutes after the shooting.

POLITICAL FUNDS SOUGHT.
COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Governor Olin Johnston expressed gratification today at the progress of the drive for Democratic campaign funds as the Young Democrats of the state launched a move to collect a $5,000 contribution.

COMMITTEES NAMED FOR MACON MEETING

Clark, Mayor Herbert Smart, of Macon, will head the city's reception for the senator, while a special committee, headed by Senator Homer Nelson, of Adel, will entertain the senator during his stay in Georgia.

To Admit Nominations. The gathering will formally approve nominations for state office in the successful candidates in the September 9 primary, including E. J. Rivers as governor and Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. for a full six-year term in the United States senate.

Rivers defeated two others in the gubernatorial contest, while Russell overcame Talmadge for the senate. The primary vote wiped out all Talmadge-sanctioned candidates.

Strikers Ask Protection of Militia, And Carolina's Governor Obliges

UNION, S. C., Oct. 4.—(P)—National guardsmen reported for duty in a textile mill strike zone here late today after the strikers had requested their presence.

A company of the 118th infantry from Rock Hill, under command of Major L. Don Matthews, arrived in four trucks and took positions about the Monarch mill.

The mill planned to reopen tomorrow for a second week of partial operation despite a strike that Union No. 1661, of the United Textile Workers of America, called September 9 against the discharge of a member for fighting a master mechanic.

Governor Olin Johnston said at Columbia that he was prepared to declare a state of insurrection in the industrial village tomorrow so the troops might displace 75 heavily armed deputies, paid by the mill, of whose conduct he said he had received complaints.

John W. Nates, state commissioner of labor and president of the State Federation of Labor, recommended the move. Nates made public this afternoon a letter from the shop committee of the union appealing for national guardsmen.

The letter, addressed to the governor and labor commissioner, bore the names of J. R. Kendrick, R. W. Johnson and L. B. Morgan, Nates said. It follows:

"After thoroughly investigating the situation at the Monarch mills, we have agreed together that the situation is serious and that human life and property are in jeopardy.

"Believing in the protection of life and property, we hereby implore and request that you send a company of the national guard to Monarch mills at once that safety may be insured until this controversy is settled."

The governor said the deputies were employed by the mill under a law permitting the sheriff to deputize any number of men at the mill management's request.

Metter; Elmer Jackson, Adel; A. W. Touchton, Howell; A. T. Minchew, Axson, and Rosser Malone, Albany.

Committee to Escort Vice Chairman.

Ralph Dawson, Ludowici, chairman; Paul Sikes, Hinesville; A. O. Blalock, Fayetteville; Mrs. J. T. McLaughlin, Jessup; R. E. Cannon, Clayton; J. C. Neal, Calhoun; J. A. Beazley, Crawfordsville; Hubert Rawls, Nahutta; Hope P. Davis, Danville; and C. N. Howard, Cusseta.

Committee to Escort Vice Chairman.

Orders by Rightist Colonel Francois de la Roque to stage a counter demonstration against the Communist groups, then returned to lose themselves among the football spectators.

About 100,000 were estimated to be in the park as the Communist meeting was only beginning. Troubles resulting from the clash of the two groups would be severe and numerous, they predicted.

Leftists charged the battles were part of a Rightist plot to provoke trouble for the Socialist government.

Find Fascist Arms.

Discovery of a large quantity of war materials hidden in the cellar of a rich nationalist widow in the city of Nancy gave impetus to Leftist charges that the French nationalists were arming.

Police, investigating a tip received in an anonymous letter, raided the house and discovered hundreds of modern Mauser rifles as well as a quantity of pistols and bayonets.

Officials scorned the woman's explanation that her deceased husband was a collector of war relics. They said all the arms were modern and in perfect condition.

Many police and mobile guardsmen were injured by synchons and chairs hurled from cafe terraces, but officials reported none was in a serious condition.

The followers of De la Roque who engaged in the encounters and demonstrations were estimated unofficially to number between 35,000 and 50,000.

The fighting broke out around the park an hour before the meeting.

Crowds of the Communists and followers of the Rightist colonel clashed in the streets leading into the park.

Several taxis carrying groups of Rightists were overturned in the Avenue Versailles and their occupants beaten.

streets were filled with Rightists shouting and fighting.

Many shops and cafes were smashed and the proprietors hastily closed their buildings. Communists dug up paving blocks and hurled them through windows of taxis used by the Rightist flying squads.

The Rightists poured from buses and subways and tried to assemble at the Porte St. Cloud but a strong force of mobile guards dispersed them.

Breaking into small groups the Rightists escaped down side streets only to fall into the hands of the waiting Combe parades.

Rightists attending a football game at Jean Boudin stadium, near the Parc Des Princes, sallied forth from time to time to seize and beat Communist groups, then returned to lose themselves among the football spectators.

Breaking into small groups the Rightists escaped down side streets only to fall into the hands of the waiting Combe parades.

Rightists attending a football game at Jean Boudin stadium, near the Parc Des Princes, sallied forth from time to time to seize and beat Communist groups, then returned to lose themselves among the football spectators.

About 100,000 were estimated to be in the park as the Communist meeting was only beginning. Troubles resulting from the clash of the two groups would be severe and numerous, they predicted.

Leftists charged the battles were part of a Rightist plot to provoke trouble for the Socialist government.

Find Fascist Arms.

Discovery of a large quantity of war materials hidden in the cellar of a rich nationalist widow in the city of Nancy gave impetus to Leftist charges that the French nationalists were arming.

Police, investigating a tip received in an anonymous letter, raided the house and discovered hundreds of modern Mauser rifles as well as a quantity of pistols and bayonets.

Officials scorned the woman's explanation that her deceased husband was a collector of war relics. They said all the arms were modern and in perfect condition.

Many police and mobile guardsmen were injured by synchons and chairs hurled from cafe terraces, but officials reported none was in a serious condition.

The followers of De la Roque who engaged in the encounters and demonstrations were estimated unofficially to number between 35,000 and 50,000.

The fighting broke out around the park an hour before the meeting.

Crowds of the Communists and followers of the Rightist colonel clashed in the streets leading into the park.

Several taxis carrying groups of Rightists were overturned in the Avenue Versailles and their occupants beaten.

One taxi filled with Rightists and waving the French tri-color rushed a crowd of Communists carrying a red flag. The Communists dragged the taxi chatters from the machine, sailed into them with fists and overturned the cab just as police arrived.

Side streets opening off the main streets were filled with Rightists shouting and fighting.

Many shops and cafes were smashed and the proprietors hastily closed their buildings. Communists dug up paving blocks and hurled them through windows of taxis used by the Rightist flying squads.

The Rightists poured from buses and subways and tried to assemble at the Porte St. Cloud but a strong force of mobile guards dispersed them.

Breaking into small groups the Rightists escaped down side streets only to fall into the hands of the waiting Combe parades.

5 PERSONS INJURED IN WACO EXPLOSION

Damage To Bank Building Is Estimated at $275,000.

WACO, Texas, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A terrific explosion which rocked the downtown section early today injured five persons, one seriously, and did damage estimated at $275,000.

The blast originated in the basement of the nine-story Liberty Bank building, wrecked offices on six floors, smashed plate glass windows in three surrounding blocks and started a fire which destroyed the stock and fixtures of the Woolworth Company next door. Two near-by drugstores were badly damaged.

Four firemen were burned, but not seriously. Warren Moore, 65, negro janitor, was badly burned, but may survive.

Cause of the explosion has not been determined. Fire Marshal Dan Nicholson gave the estimate of damage.

Witnesses said the building seemed to burst apart. The building is located at the intersection of two of the busiest streets in this central Texas city of 90,000, which only last Sunday was flooded by the Brazos river with $1,500,000 damage.

The blast occurred when Moore started to light a gas burner under a water heater. He told Assistant District Attorney Francis Baerle there was a hissing sound. He staggered to the street, where Gus Wingham tore off his flaming clothing.

The First National Bank, owner of the building, immediately let a contract for repairs and work was started tonight.

KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR SUCCUMBS

He had been critically ill of a heart ailment for six months. Members of Dr. Terrell's family notified University of Kentucky officials of his death.

Sally J. Terrell, Louisa, and Miss Mary Terrell, New York, and one brother, Frank C. Terrell, Louisa. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Dr. Terrell's old home, "Glen Core," in Louisa county. The Rev. W. S. Overton will officiate.

COLONIAL POSSESSIONS WANTED BY GERMANY

BRESLAU, Germany, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Nation-wide agitation stressing Germany's need for colonies will culminate here October 16-19 in a colonial convention to center world attention on Germany's demands.

For weeks German support has been rallied to the cry for colonies through a campaign of editorials and posters. One of the most striking placards shows the German eagle, wings spread as though about to take flight, with a swastika banner fluttering above and tropical palms and mountains in the background.

Its message contains three words: "Germany, your colonies." Another poster quotes Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Nuremberg proclamation: "Germany never can abandon the solution of its colonial demands. The German people's right to live is just as great as the rights of other nations."

A smaller reproduction, with a membership application in the realm of colonial league attached, has been distributed widely.

'Frisco Follies' and Holt Feature Bill at Capitol

Vaudeville above the ordinary is offered at the Capitol this week in "Frisco Follies," a variety show with a cast of 25.

From its opening act until the final number, the audience yesterday gave the troupe round after round of applause. The acts were co-ordinated by the personable little Ginger Stover, who directed the orchestra, served as mistress of ceremonies, and did a few dances for good measure.

Most popular with the crowd were the antics of Joe Sidney, clown on the unicycle; the tumbling of Glorvyn and Brown; and the fun-provoking singing and dancing of Meyers and Nolan. A chorus, a good orchestra and a talented contortionist completed the vaudeville bill.

On the screen is the ever popular Jack Holt, who plays another of the roles which he and Ralph Graves made famous—Jack is the hero and the partner gets the girl. This time Holt is in the principal role of "Crash Donovan" and as a hard-riding state patrolman demonstrates impressively a few reasons why drivers should be more careful on the open road.

Holt's partner in the new film is John King and the love-light of the two friends is centered around petite Nan Gray, who portrays the role of the superior officer's daughter. Eddie Acuff adds a bit of good comedy acting.

For those who like action and the Holt technique, this picture is recommended. Combined with the vaudeville acts, "Crash Donovan" makes an excellent attraction at the Capitol.

HAVEN IN MEXICO

German Refused Protection in America.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Otto Richter, 21, who says he fled from Germany to escape Nazi persecution, tonight planned to seek asylum in Mexico.

The American Committee for Foreign Born, which appealed unsuccessfully for a reversal of the Labor Department's ruling that Richter should be returned to Germany, announced Mexican authorities had consented to receive him as a "political exile."

Richter, who plans to leave the United States with his American-born wife within three weeks, left Germany in November, 1933, and jumped ship at Seattle. He was arrested in San Francisco during the general strike of 1934 and held for deportation. Last June he marched down Broadway with a sign on his back saying "Shoot Me." He contended he would suffer that fate if sent back to Germany.

MANILA IS BOMBED

$500,000 Fire Started; Communists Suspected.

MANILA, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Authorities said they were without clues today to identify bombers who set off half a dozen downtown blasts last night, starting a $500,000 fire and crippling one important water main.

Major General Paulino Santos, chief of staff of the Philippine army, said he suspected Communists and added "the government is strong enough to quell any disturbances by radical elements."

Labor Secretary Ramon Torres said he was investigating a newly organized group known as the "Secret Twelve."

ACROBATIC BURGLAR ROBS MOVING TRAIN

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The year's savings of 25 circus electricians were taken in a spectacular robbery of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus train between Corpus Christi and Houston early today.

The robber apparently swung on the side of the speeding train and bored through the side of a heavy wagon to the money box inside, circus officials said. A total of $1,900 in cash was taken.

"Either an acrobat or a human monkey pulled the job," said Raleigh Davidson, chief electrician and heaviest loser.

While the train sped 60 miles an hour, the robber hung onto the steel hooks used for racking tent poles and bored through the side of the wagon and into the money box, circus officials theorized.

NAZI DAY DREAMS

For months the Nazi government of Germany has been busily engaged in picturing a new and great Germanic nation, made possible through the co-operation of all Germans, whether living in their native country or elsewhere. To this end a speaker at the recent Nazi convention at Nurnberg promised that aid could be expected "even from those who have already become citizens of their host nation, for by blood they belong to us and to no one else."

Commenting upon this amazing doctrine, the New York Herald Tribune says:

Fortunately, these views are held by only a few Germans who have become citizens of "their host nations." Otherwise this policy could be viewed only with resentment here in America. The German-born American citizens and their children and grandchildren are an integral and most valuable element in the United States. Their loyalty was not even shaken by the injustice done many individuals in the fever of the World War excitement. Some of them, of course, greatly admire Mr. Hitler and his Germany, but many more feel as does Mr. Charles Nagel, of St. Louis, that Hitler has betrayed and destroyed the kindly, cultured Germany that they knew and loved. In its place, he has erected a structure that is harsh, unyielding and unlovely.

The reference to Germans naturalized in other countries as living in "host nations" is unjust to every German who has formally become a citizen of another nation. Americans of German descent who have been naturalized in this country are not "guests" of this nation. They are American citizens and it is to be expected that they are loyal ones.

America as the melting pot nation of the world has thousands of citizens of different race from the early English settlers of the country. Of all these different races, none has failed to give their full allegiance to their new country.

This is true of no race to a greater extent than the Germans who in large numbers have become citizens of this country. The Nazi claim that they will answer the call of Hitler to participate in another great war is an insult to their integrity and their intelligence.

PROFITS IN POULTRY

County Agent J. W. Stephenson points with pride to the fact that Hall county produced half a million fryers during the past year, bringing to the producers more than $300,000 in revenue. According to Arthur C. Gannon, extension poultryman of the State College of Agriculture, Hall county leads the nation in this industry, as no other county, even in the great poultry states of the nation, produced as many.

"There will probably be many more raised in a radius of 25 miles of Gainesville the coming season," Mr. Gannon says, "as more Hall county farmers and those in adjacent territory, realizing the value of this good cash crop, are preparing to go into the industry. Some of the raisers produce as many as 20,000, and they find a ready market in Atlanta. The season lasts from November to May."

A movement that will greatly increase the production of high-grade poultry in the state is announced in the appointment of 35 poultry raisers and hatcherymen as flock selecting and pullorum testing agents by the Georgia Breed Improvement Supervisory Board. Working under direction of Poultry Specialist Gannon, these agents will select and test flocks which will be certified as to whether or not they are free from pullorum diseases and white diarrhea and that the flocks come up to the standards of production.

Forty per cent of Georgia's consumption of poultry and eggs is imported, and the extension service is aiming at making the state self-supporting in this respect.

The present interest in poultry is a far cry from the period when chickens roosted in trees, ranged the farm for their sustenance and hens "stole their nests." During the years of the depression the busy hen saved many a farmer when cotton hit the extremely low price of five cents, and now that progressive agriculturists are raising livestock and diversifying their farming activities, the hen is doing her share in adding to the annual cash income.

Natural advantages are all in favor of a greatly expanded poultry industry, and it is one in which every farmer can engage with small cost and a certainty of good profits with small outlay of industry and care.

MORE FOREIGN COTTON

Two significant features are contained in a report from Shanghai that "China's cotton crop this year will exceed last year's by 70 per cent, but Japanese merchants are ordering their cotton from abroad."

American growers must face the fact that the production of cotton in other sections of the world will continue to grow, even if only that every cotton-producing nation may be able to supply as much as possible of its own demands.

Brazil was once one of the largest consumers of American cotton. Now it not only supplies most of its own needs, but is an exporter. Russia has increased its production to meet its demands, and China can be expected to boost its output to care for the textile mills springing up for the manufacture of the cheap clothing worn by its huge coolie population.

All of this increase in foreign production cannot be taken as a net decrease in world consumption of American cotton, because world consumption is steadily increasing, although not at the rate of foreign production.

There will nevertheless be a reduction in the demand for American cotton for the manufacture of cheap materials, but this need mean no material lessening of the demand for American cotton if our growers will produce exclusively the long-staple cotton which can be grown nowhere else and which is necessary in the manufacture of high-grade textiles. This is why Japanese merchants are still buying American cotton despite the increased production in their own area.

But the handwriting on the wall is plain that the southern farmer must produce better cotton, and, for a time at least, avoid the danger of bumper crops, if he is to continue to demand profitable prices.

With the new diversity of agricultural production in the south this will mean no lessening of the opportunity for profitable farming. Especially is this true in Georgia. Within the past quarter of a century a great tobacco industry has been developed, bringing this year almost a fifth as much as was received by our cotton growers in the old day of all-cotton farming.

The peach industry is bringing in other millions, peanuts, potatoes, livestock and other products are certain profit-makers if intelligently produced. In the tung and other nut trees the state has opportunity for other certain profits.

Foreign cotton production is certain to increase, but if the southern farmer is wise it will be a blessing rather than a blow to his prosperity.

Now that they sell the stuff legally, and there are no bonus reductions to pass upon, half the mental strain has gone out of veterans' conventions.

Early impressions die hard, but we've about abandoned the idea that present-day Europe is anything like the early Burton Holmes lectures.

World's Window

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Interesting News.

In a newspaper published by the so-called "Nationalist" junta at Burgos, I read this morning that Marshal Pétain has risen against the government of the Popular Front in France and that the army of France is now busy reducing the last strongholds of the "Reds" in Lyon, Marseilles and Bordeaux.

I do not know how old Marshal Pétain is, but I think he is slightly over 80. He was retired from active service several years ago. A military man in France is not supposed to participate in politics, nevertheless the marshal's political persuasions are well known. He is a radical-socialist, which does not mean that he is a Socialist, and even less that he is a radical, in the sense we give to these words.

The army in France is not an army of pronouncements like the Spanish. It follows the instructions of the government and is not likely to follow the general who takes it in his head to take action against the government. In France there is a government of the Popular Front, which is the government of the country, legally elected and constitutionally formed according to the procedure of civilized democratic institutions, like the government of Spain.

There may be men who are not in agreement with the French government's policies, there certainly are many opponents. But as to taking up arms against the constituted authority, that is far too serious a matter. It simply isn't done. Moreover, in the lower courts, the French government is the employment of force, the French government would only in the very last extremity employ the regular army. The army is to be kept out of politics at all times.

A special force, the mobile guard, exists specifically to act as support of the government in such cases. The force, 10,000 strong, perfectly armed, is not part of the army, but stands under command of the minister of justice.

Employment in Germany.

At the recent party congress in Nuremberg, speakers for the German government could afford to boast that there is not a single unemployed person left in Germany. This would constitute a magnificent achievement for the Hitler movement, but for one consideration: where have the three million and a half unemployed gone whom the chancellor found when he assumed power?

The answer is: they have been absorbed in the armament industry and in the newly created reichswehr. Seven million men are working on armaments in the reich and almost two million are either in the army or in one of the auxiliary forces.

Now an armament industry may enrich the armament makers, and it certainly does, but it impoverishes a nation, especially a nation that has such immense difficulties with its exports and its lack of markets and sources of raw materials as Germany.

How long can Germany keep up this terrific strain that her armaments cost? And when the army and the air force and the navy are finally built up to the full strength which is to be kept next? I mean where are the millions of workers engaged in the armament industry to find work when the measure of arming is full?

Whoever can answer these questions will render the world a distinct service, for every country in Europe must make a decision about it with her colossal armaments, seeing that you can't feed a people of 67,000,000 on machine guns and bombing planes.

Mr. Roosevelt's Ascent.

As the electoral campaign enters into its decisive phase, political doctors and pulse-takers seem pretty well unanimous in their prognostications that Mr. Roosevelt will carry the day, as he did four years ago. In this connection the foreign correspondents stationed in Washington may perhaps be said to have a particularly unbiased view, for they have no local axes to grind, and their dispatches do not often express the truth of that old maxim: "What we wish very much, we easily believe."

As a rule more detached, less swayed by partisan passions and cooler in their judgment than the journalists who are head over heels in love with all that the men who represent the great French, British, German, Italian and Russian newspapers, agree that the President's reelection is a foregone conclusion.

Some of the foreign correspondents, however, are not so sure. They are critical observers in Europe smile over the infantile ways of their press rooms. (Copyright, 1936, by The Constitution.)

Talmudic Tales

BY DAVID MORANTZ.

STRETCH YOUR LEGS ACCORDING TO YOUR COVERLET.

Identically the same thing happened with the second son, so he discharged him, too, and called for his youngest son to come and nurse him.

The father started in the same way with him, also, but this young man was shrewder than his brothers. When he saw how heartily the father ate his meals, he knew that he could not be so stupid as to pretend to be a doctor.

During a lull in the old man's complaining, the son slipped out into the garden and cut a switch from a pomegranate tree, hiding it under his cloak, and then he returned to the room.

Before long the father again complained that his feet were cold and the young man patiently pulled down the coverlet to cover them. Then he complained that his shoulders were cold and the son dutifully pulled the coverlet over them. Then when the father again complained of the coldness of his feet, the young man brought out the switch from a hiding place and began striking the bed violently close to his father's feet.

"All right," he exclaimed. "If your feet are cold stretch them according to your coverlet."

This surprised his father so much that he quickly drew his feet up in such a way that the quilt covered them.

"That will be all from you," cried the father. "I want no more of your nursing!"

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS FAIR ENOUGH

BY PAUL MALLON.

EXPECTANCIES WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Mortality prospects of reconvening supreme court are not encouraging to those who expect it to be reorganized by deaths and new appointments during the next year.

The insurance table of life expectancy, based on American experience, quotes the following impersonal odds on the justices: (Their names are omitted because the statute of public limitations outlaws birthdays for males after the first 60 and for females after the 16th.)

In words, this means the oldest justice has an insurance expectancy of outliving the New Deal even if it gets a lease of four more years. This justice, furthermore, happens to be the leading advocate for some of President Roosevelt's constitutional interpretations.

Equally pointed, is the inside news that the only two justices ailing during the recess are among the so-called minority. Their passing would be of no help to Mr. Roosevelt.

Note.—The table also shows five justices have passed the retirement age of 70, and a sixth has reached it. However, all expectancy of voluntary retirements has long ago been abandoned.

PROSPECTS Dope books of court bird indicate that at least one more New Deal move may be overturned by the court during the court during the session. Odds are against the government in the Wagner labor case.

The old question of whether manufacturing is interstate commerce (and therefore subject to federal regulation), is involved. This present court has frequently held that it is not. Five cases were won against the government in the lower courts. Two other cases were won by the government in the lower courts, but these involve the same manufacturing issue. The Wagner case would not ordinarily be decided until early in January, but an effort will be made to advance a decision.

Earlier decision is expected in the Duke power case, testing the validity of PWA grants for municipal power plants. The outcome of this case is in doubt.

Another big decision may come on the constitutionality of the New York unemployment insurance phase of the social security program (but does not involve the old-age pensions provisions.) Odds are with the government in this case.

FANCIES The farm division of the Democratic campaign organization is having a hectic time inside trying to stamp out fanciful farm atrocity rumors.

One St. Louis woman complained she sat hungry on the banks of the Mississippi, with a starving child, watching AAA officials drive chickens and turkeys into the river. Soothsayers are certainly wrong with this one because the AAA had nothing to do with turkeys and chickens.

Another prize is the one that the AAA dumped 300 bushels of wheat into Lake Michigan in the dead of a single night. The only thing wrong with it is that there are not 300 grain boats on Lake Michigan, that they could not have accomplished the feat in a dozen nights, and that the AAA never destroyed any harvested wheat anyway.

Most famous, however, is the predicament of the poor widow who lived on her farm alone, saving every penny. One day she killed two hogs for her own use, whereupon two AAA officials came out from behind the house, taxed her $18, took the hogs away and left her to starve. The widow's tale has appeared in various sections of the country, but the widow herself has never been located.

PUBLIC OPINION Around the agriculture department they blame popularity of the AAA. Walt Disney more than anyone else for the little pigs at about the time Mr. Roosevelt came to the White House. Shortly thereafter, in the fall of '33, the AAA conducted its famous pig slaughter. Public opinion creators in the AAA say if Disney had not promoted human characteristics for pigs, no more tears would have been wept for them than for cotton plowed under.

Social note.—The fourteen (14) government observers who went to the American bankers' convention, to see and be seen but not heard, have returned to their duties here.

And the "mystic" was supposed to read the question and answer to the minds of the questioners and answer them.

Some of the information she revealed concerning the questioners sounded quite mystical, too.

A Little Blaze Will Burn a Forest If You Don't Backfire

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

Uneasy citizens who yearn for sure guidance in these perilous times can do no better than consider the fable of the tortoise and the hare.

The turtle, as you know, beat the rabbit in a foot race simply by plugging along while the too-confident rabbit lay down to take a nap.

The story is ancient, but this generation has seen ample evidence of its truth. We can recall, with shame and sorrow, a number of contests in which the foolish and evil won simply by working at it while wiser and better people did nothing.

The greatest enemies of all progress and decency are inertia and indifference.

The mass of mankind either settles in a rut or indifferently drifts with the current.

Thus the world is left at the mercy of any group that has enterprise and energy enough to take charge of it and use it.

Do you know why "crooked politicians" and "greedy corporations" have always been able to use our government for their own profit? Simply because they kept working at it while nobody else tried.

We all know these things. Heaven knows we have been told often enough. But we always forget until we find ourselves in trouble.

Now we are asking for trouble of a new kind. We believe in individual freedom and rule by the majority without force. But seven nations, armed to the teeth, are dedicated to the proposition that all liberty should be surrendered for the good of the state.

We are told that our constitution protects us, but it doesn't. No document can protect people from a crazy idea.

And neither precedent nor prosperity can protect us from an epidemic madness if we passively rest in fancied security while the champions of the mad idea work grimly and fiercely to make it universal.

No matter how crazy the idea seems to you, its own momentum will eventually sweep everything before it if the friends of liberty make no effort to fight it.

Hollywood Today

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Most of today's stars were catapulted to prominence by unusual personality trademarks affixed by clever press agents.

Marlene Dietrich was something of a problem to her studio before an inspired publicist gave birth to the idea of advertising the actress' legs on thousands of billboards all over the country.

When all the world and his wife knew the contour of the Dietrich legs, she was instructed to cover them with pants, a stunt which horrified the public but gave the shapely member limbs even more publicity than when exposed to public gaze.

Marlene, who never does things by halves, went for trousers in a big way, and wore bona fide masculine evening suits. Maria, her young daughter, also donned trousers and tailored coats.

A stream of criticism from the women of the land resulted in Miss Dietrich taking her pants and self to France, but they fared even worse in that country. When she landed at Cherbourg clad in a man's suit, a mob of Frenchmen hissed her back to her studio and into female clothing.

But the trick was done. While the pants masquerade was on, Marlene grabbed more publicity for herself than any other screen actress before or since.

Katharine Hepburn came to Hollywood with definite ideas of how to focus the publicity spotlight on her. She decided to be a freak. The rumor was instigated that she was heirless to the $150 million fortune of her father, who died when she was a child.

Excuse me if I seem to enjoy myself. Mr. Hoyt said, "I like to see them slap these boys around because it makes me look not so bad after years of study for the undertaking profession. Mr. Hoyt chuckled it, as he doesn't like dead guys."

An airplane crossed the sky towing a streamer advertising a popular downtown meat shop or burlesque and just behind it followed another airplane, which read in red letters, "Vote for Roosevelt." The red letters are regarded as final proof.

The ball game became so ordinary that it wasn't even discussed in the ball game. The game was continued to flog the ball in the seventh with 10 runs behind them already.

Crowds Do Little Shouting. It is a fact that they do very little yelling, although imagination insists that the stadium is a tumult of shouts.

The truth is, however, that the customers yell only in little spasmodic bursts when something unusual happens. At other times the only sound is the murmur and the chirp of the telegraph bugs can be heard plainly through it all. I just thought you ought to know.

On Wednesday when the weather was bad and many customers were frightened off by the customary alarm of a ticket shortage, the film firm was in the entertainment of the striking firemen and sympathizers in this vicinity today when two freight trains were stopped by a mob and the train crews overpowered. Four employees of the company were seriously injured, one of them sustaining a fractured skull.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Not even Dr. Vizetelly knows what the modern youngsters are going to do to Mr. Webster's masterpiece but to understand the conversation that shoots by them these days.

No one can deny that the new vernacular is rich and racy, rough and ready, packed with wit and humor, full of metaphor and simile; nor can one deny that it carries a big punch. Above all things it is casual, the keynote of the current crop. To uninitiated grownups "slanguage" (credit to Frank Scully) makes about as much sense as Greek made to the barbarians. Those wishing to understand what is being said and wishing to get in occasionally, will have to do what the barbarians did: learn a new vocabulary, translate their homely talk into the new and picturesque tongue. But the end is not yet; for the new language is fluid, figures of speech that are here today are gone tomorrow and a new set has replaced them. It is quite as disgraceful to be caught using antiquated slang as it is to be caught wearing a straw hat when official fall has been ushered in.

An old gentleman whose hobby is English, pure and undefiled, recently sat down for a cozy chat with his grandnephew. "How did you get along at the dentist's?" he asked the boy. "Self," he polished my grinders, told me to come back to have my pavement torn up and my pipes fixed. He gave me a good ribbing for not cutting the sweaters off my hair. The old gentleman looked puzzled as if he thought somebody had gone out of his head and said meekly: "I am afraid I don't understand you." (What grown-up would without the aid of a Jack?)

Well, old dears, translated into ancient English, the gist of the young man's remarks was this: The dentist had cleaned his teeth, discovered a leaking inlay which had to be removed and replaced; after which he had rebrushed the patient for failure to brush his teeth thoroughly and regularly.

Old and young must admit that the new mode of talk has its points. There are no more interminable arguments and discussions in the modern family councils. Mama and Papa who used to deliver long lectures on morals and manners must now hold down what they have to say, roll it in pill doses and throw it out smartly or the lectures are lost. The fire-cracker comments of the youngsters on people and problems sharpen the wits of the grown-ups for the snappy comebacks. If they can't keep up they quit, with the result that the drones are eliminated from general conversation.

In the now famous words of Jack Sharkey: "Youth must be served." And it demands to be served with a more picturesque speech.

ROBERT F. WYNNE DIES AT RESIDENCE

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Prominent Atlanta Businessman.

Robert Francis Wynne, 67, for 50 years a resident of Atlanta and a well-known business man, died of a heart attack early yesterday morning at his home at 541 Greenwood avenue, N. E. He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Lottie Donnelly, daughter of the late Captain and Mrs. J. J. Martin and Mrs. J. A. LaFite, of Atlanta; a son, R. F. Wynne Jr., of Macon; four sisters, Mrs. J. D. Dameron, Mrs. K. W. Word, Mrs. W. F. Wesley and Miss Elizabeth Wynne, all of Atlanta; two brothers, Charles and Tucker Wynne, of Atlanta, and a nephew, Don Wynne, of Atlanta. Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock today at Peachtree chapel, with the Rev. Felton Williams officiating. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

Mr. Wynne began his business career with the old firm of J. J. and J. E. Maddox, wholesale dealers, and later organized his own tobacco business, R. F. Wynne & Co. For many years he was connected with the Atlanta branches of several motion picture companies.

Identification was made by H. L. Angel, night clerk of the hotel. Local police have notified New York police of the accident in an effort to locate Lawler's family.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

ALBANY, N. Y., Friday—All day yesterday the sessions of the New York state branch of the National Youth Administration went on in Albany. I listened for two days and became very much more intelligent than I was before on the subject of vocational guidance, apprenticeship, and, finally, the whole relationship of youth to the economic and social situation as a whole.

Miss Flora Rose, director of the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell University, said one thing which I will never forget. From her point of view, the two most important things for youth are economic security—a feeling that they may depend at least on a preparation for life—secondly, emotional security—which, she explains, means that all youth has to feel itself cherished.

I think this particular point is borne in on you most strongly when you visit orphanages and reform schools. I have always had the feeling when I have been to these institutions that you could sense the desire to belong to someone in the eyes of the children. They want to be necessary to some family or individual, in other words, to be a part of the social order.

Such a conference as this, with its opportunities to talk with different people, leaves you stimulated with new thoughts. When I woke this morning to a beautiful day, I felt like saying: "I have spent two good days." May they bear fruit in thought and action during the coming months.

The weather is so glorious that I decided to have one more day in the open. Mrs. Scheider came up in my car to meet me and we have cooked our lunch out-of-doors and are having a free day.

I was not able to listen to the President's speech last night because I was at a meeting of the conference. Early this morning while I was eating breakfast, the maid in the hotel, who has been most attentive, came in and reported to me on what he said and how it sounded over the radio. I thought she was very kind and considerate, because she knew I would like to know her impressions.

I have been reading Carl Van Doren's "Three Worlds." I delighted in his appreciation of Elinor Wiley and I was particularly impressed with the last part of the book. One little phrase fits in with my own experience and will always stay in my mind. The gist of it is this, that he tried to sit down and think a situation out and found that all he could do was to live it out. In my own experience I have found over and over again that very many problems are impossible to solve through thought alone. It is only after they develop that you are able, by doing instead of thinking, to meet the situation and know what should be done.

DON'T DIET—DODGE CALORIES.

Do you LOVE to eat? With a sweet tooth and a disposition that saves calories the old adage is "natural." An unrefined digestive system that sits square in the middle of the diet and perfect 36, storing every extra calorie, makes it difficult to control the curve. That being the case, you have one of four choices—diet, exercise, dodging calories—and embonpoint!

Dieting is the most direct means of losing weight, but if you reduce on a strict diet the pounds roll back again—the yo-yo effect. In the long run, moderate dieting is far better than an occasional hunger strike. It is well to remember that the more rigid the diet, the faster you lose, and the faster you gain it all back. Exercise increases the oxidation of the fat, since calories are burned on muscular demand. However, there is one big drawback to strenuous exercise—the reducer. It creates a ravenous appetite. You are so hungry, you have to eat, and the calories more than offset the exercise. Moderation is the important thing in both diet and exercise, and the combination is more successful than strenuous exercise without dieting, or rigid diet without exercise.

You cannot ignore appetite. You must learn to cope with it; so juggle the calories to satisfy the appetite, but dodge the fats and concentrated carbohydrates. The first rule in calorie dodging is, "Don't go hungry." Your overweight is proof that you cannot hold out against appetite.

There are two ways to satisfy hunger. One is by eating foods that give a great deal of bulk for their calorie count. Such foods as fruits and vegetables give a sense of fullness which is a part of the normal satisfaction of hunger. The second plan is always to include a certain amount of food with staying qualities. A normal amount of lean meat, milk and eggs averts the feeling of weakness produced by a poorly balanced diet.

"Don't go hungry!" Fruits and vegetables give a sense of fullness. Fats are the most concentrated form of calories, for, as you know, they count two and one-fourth times as much as the other foods. However, some fat must be included in the menu not only as a source of vitamin A, but as help in controlling hunger. Dr. Mary Swartz Rose, an authority on nutrition, suggests that fat be included in the most conspicuous places—on the table, where you can see it, and not in the food while it is cooking. Take the fats you like best—butter, cream, a small amount of French dressing, etc.—but watch the cooking fats. Also, a half-pat of butter per meal will spread farther if the butter is fairly soft.

Dodging the calories is an art. Keep at it until you can plan your meals with the greatest satisfaction for the least calories, always, of course, keeping the menu balanced. Before long you will find yourself munching cheerfully on low-calorie foods. The new "Protective Diet Chart" will help you.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

THE ZONES OF BIDDING.

It is indispensable that the player be able, after hearing from partner, to indicate his desire as to whether the bidding should be dropped or continued to game or slam. In the chaotic traffic of the thousands of hands dealt it will be necessary to flash the red spotlight (minimum bids), or green spotlight (game forcing bids), or orange attention light (intermediate bids), while the blinkers (pass) siren the death warning. Accordingly, the bidding territory consists of four infernal zones of bidding, and each zone is serviced by its own system of strategical bids.

The Four Zones of Bidding.

All bids (and hands) belong to one of the four following zones of bidding: The game, the slam, the minimum, and the intermediate zones. In this manner either player can signal at once to his partner that his strength is such that no game (part-score), game (strong hand), or a slam (very strong hand), should be expected, so that the duet is sung by the player and his partner "pianissimo," "forte," or "fortissimo."

Game zone bidding: The special kind of bids that flash the green game signal, driving the hands toward game, are the forcing bids derived from the forcing principle. Naturally, the game is not guaranteed by the United States treasury, and a bad break may belie the announcement of the player who has made a force.

(The other zones of bidding will be discussed tomorrow.)

TODAY'S HAND.

It is a matter of common knowledge that slams are more difficult to reach when a team has a part-score than when it has not. Consider today's hand.

North, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable; North-South 90 part-score.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1spade	Pass	2clubs	Pass
3spades	Pass	3no trump	Pass
4no trump	Pass	6no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

It will be noted that, in order to reach the slam, both players had to overbid appreciably. That is to say, from the point of view of ordinary bidding, they overbid. But each bid, from the two-club response on, carried with it a subtle implication due to the score that, to a large measure, justified each succeeding "stretch." North knew that South would not have bid two clubs on a 90 score without a better hand than the bid itself guaranteed. Therefore, he stretched his own rebid slightly to three spades, rather than to convey the impression of "a minny" by merely rebidding two spades. Then when South, in his turn, perceived that North had slam aspirations, he conveyed a willingness to "go along" by selecting a response that had a new implication of strength, namely, three no trump. It must be remembered that he was not obligated to respond at all to the three-spade bid. Obviously the slam contract was made with ease, since declarer had only to clear away the club ace.

It is vital to note that six spades could not have been made against the opening heart lead, which would have been East's normal opening. North was wise to assist the no trump bid, thus permitting the opening lead to be guarded by the combined North-South tenace.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: What is the meaning of the term "a ruff and a sluff?"

Answer: "Sluff" (correct spelling, slough) means "discard." The phrase means ruffing in one hand while discarding in the other.

FORMAL FAIR OPENING SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

In the opening automobile races, and Fritz Tegmeier, of Roselle, Ill., narrowly escaped death when his machine was completely demolished as it turned over three times on the north curve of the race track in the second race. The crash tore away more than 120 feet of the railing. Tegmeier was thrown clear and escaped unhurt.

A mammoth all-Atlanta parade, starting at 11:30 o'clock at West Peachtree street and North avenue, and traversing West Peachtree and Whitehall streets, Stewart avenue and Lakewood avenue will precede the formal opening of the fair today.

All marching units in the parade will form at Peachtree and Baker streets and disband at Whitehall and Trinity avenue, leaving the units on wheels to continue to the fairgrounds.

Parade Sponsors. Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the parade, with J. B. Crouch, president; Fair Peek, secretary, and Dale Kelly and George B. Yancey in charge of the parade.

Game That Was Never Played Fails To Save Young Grid Player's Life

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Death blew the final whistle today for John Leonard, young high school football player, while teammates whispered to him bullets of a game that was never played.

Critically injured in a practice scrimmage, the 17-year-old Swampscott High end bravely fought a losing game last night in a hospital here.

In his delirium he constantly called out to know the score of the game his team was to have played yesterday afternoon with Wakefield High school.

There was no score to tell him for Coach Harold Martin and his players had called the game off when they learned that Leonard was near death, but best word that the game had been abandoned have an adverse effect on him, Coach Martin and members of the eleven sat last night outside the boy's hospital room, inventing details of four bitterly-fought periods which at Mount Kisco, N. Y., as well as a city apartment.

A staunch foe of war, Straus more than once appealed to the nations to recognize what he termed its "barbarity and futility." He was active in seeking to better American-French trade and frequently took occasion abroad to praise President Roosevelt's administration.

In 1934, he counseled fellow Americans in Europe "not to be too much disturbed by lurid accounts" of strikes and business difficulties in this country—a view of calmness and confidence he often advocated in international situations.

Ill health hampered him in Paris almost from the start. In May of 1933, less than two months after his appointment, it was necessary for him to return to this country for medical treatment.

Outstanding Work. Praised by Hull. WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Secretary Hull said today that "the nation did not have a more outstanding or capable representative abroad" than Jesse I. Straus, former ambassador to Paris, who died at New York.

Straus' resignation on August 18—forced by ill health—was accepted by President Roosevelt with a letter telling him that "if this administration shall be continued for another four years I shall count on your returning as part of it."

Hull said that Straus' resignation was "a matter of keenest regret" and that he was "deeply shocked" by the news of his death.

The appointment of Straus as ambassador on March 17, 1933, was among the first of important diplomatic posts to be filled by Mr. Roosevelt after his inauguration.

Pershing and Bullitt. ARE DEEPLY MOVED. PARIS, Oct. 4.—(AP)—William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to France, said today he was shocked to hear of the death of Jesse I. Straus, his predecessor, in New York.

"I am deeply shocked to hear Mr. Straus is dead," Bullitt said. "I had a conversation with him in New York the morning of my departure for France September 23."

"His last words to me were, 'I hope you will be as happy as I was in Paris.'"

"Straus was a businessman of the highest ability who had the breadth of mind to be able to turn his great talent to the service of his country. He was a most loyal friend and I shall miss him deeply and personally as well as officially."

General John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Force in France during the World War, also praised the former ambassador's services.

"I am deeply moved," he said, "at the passing of my friend, former Ambassador Straus. He was an earnest, hard-working representative of the American government."

"He made a fine reputation in Europe as a diplomat and his French friends deeply sympathize with us at his loss. America loses an intensely fine and patriotic citizen."

GREAT LOSS TO NEW YORK. GOVERNOR LEHMAN SAYS.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(UP)—"Shocked and deeply grieved" at the death of Ambassador Jesse Isidor Straus, in New York city today, Governor Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, tonight said "New York state has lost one of its most distinguished sons."

The Governor commented: "I am shocked and deeply grieved to hear of the passing of my friend, Ambassador Straus. He and I have been close friends for more than 40 years and I feel a very great personal loss in his death."

"He was a splendid citizen who had the affection and regard of all with whom he came into contact."

"As the first chairman of the state temporary emergency relief administration and as ambassador to France he gave himself without stint and without thought of self to the service of the state and the nation."

"New York state has lost one of its most distinguished sons."

STRAUS A DESCENDANT OF OLD GEORGIA FAMILY. Jesse Isidor Straus, who died yesterday in New York of pneumonia, was a member of an old Georgia family, members of which were prominent in the defense of the Confederacy and the rebuilding of Tallahassee, Columbus and Atlanta.

The Straus commercial empire had its inception at Tallahassee, where his grandfather, Lazarus Straus, began his business career. The affiliation of Davidson-Paxon with the New York Straus family was a direct outgrowth of Jesse Isidor Straus' return to Atlanta to visit the old family home at Tallahassee.

There, on March 22, 1927, a magnificent reception was tendered Mr. Straus and his brother, Herbert Straus. A barbecue was served on the courthouse lawn, at which Colonel Frederic J. Paxon and Beaumont Davidson were present. At that time Mr. Straus and his brother visited the three old buildings which once had housed the Straus family, and talked to old settlers who had known Lazarus Straus.

Mr. Straus met Colonel Frederic J. Paxon while on a visit to his former home.

In March, 1927, The Constitution detailed the history of the commercial consolidation and carried articles on the welcome accorded Mr. Straus. That time Raymond A. Kline was named general manager of the consolidated store.

Negro Slain After Shooting Fifteen; Routed With Dynamite, Gas, Fire

WINDSOR, N. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Driven from his house by fire after tear gas and dynamite had failed to dislodge him, Ben Throver, negro, was shot and killed today after he had wounded 12 white men and three negroes with buckshot.

Only two persons were seriously wounded. They are J. W. Waters, chief of police here, and a state highway patrolman named Welch. Waters was shot in the chest and Welch in the mouth and the back of the head.

Among others, of Bertie county; Assistant Police Chief W. L. Smallwood, and H. M. Morris and A. B. Gilliam, both of Bertie county.

Smallwood said he answered a call at Throver's house on the outskirts of town about 8 o'clock this morning. The negro had been fighting with his brother. On arriving there, he said, the negro shot at him.

Although wounded in the mouth, leg and chest, Smallwood exchanged five or six shots with the negro before going for help.

Barricaded in his home, Throver held a large crowd of citizens and law enforcement officials at bay for close to six hours. Sniping with almost deadly accuracy, he picked off his victims one by one.

Tear gas shot into his house failed to dislodge him. Dynamite was thrown at the home, but the officers could not get close enough to do much damage.

When his house was set on fire, the negro waited until the place was nearly demolished, then came out screaming and shooting.

Smallwood shot him three times before he had moved 10 paces. He apparently died instantly.

Funeral services for W. S. Boatwright, 56, WPA official there, who died almost instantly from injuries received in the wreck, were held in Windsor today.

A third occupant of the car, the Rev. J. H. Clarke, leaped to safety as the engine of a Central of Georgia passenger train southbound from Atlanta to Macon, bore down on the stalled machine.

Funeral services for Mr. Anderson, native of Forsyth, were set for 3 p. m. Monday at the Presbyterian church with Dr. Aquila Chamblee, Bessie Tift College president, officiating.

He was assisted by Rev. Augustus Ernest, pastor of the Forsyth Methodist church. Interment will be in a Forsyth cemetery.

CHAMBER WAR IS SEEN ON CONSUMER CO-OPS

U. S. Trade Body Demands
Government Refuse Groups
Special Aid.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(UP)—First rumblings of a threatened trade war in America were heard tonight when a committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce demanded governmental agencies abolish preferential treatment in tax exemptions, other aid to consumers' co-operatives and treat all business alike.

The committee, headed by Clem D. Johnston, of Roanoke, Va., made its report to the chamber's board of directors after a careful study of the growth and operations of co-operatives and their potential effect on private enterprise. President Harper Sibley made the report public tonight without comment and gave no indication of the attitude the board will take toward the proposal in shaping its legislative program for the coming session of congress.

Nevertheless, the United Press learned that the directors are apprehensive over the spread of the movement through which consumers band together and effect economies through co-operative purchases and sales of various commodities. Johnston's report was discussed at considerable length before it was made public.

The anxiety of some directors is said to have been heightened by the fact that President Roosevelt has been studying the operations of co-operatives in Scandinavian countries where the movement is more advanced. Recently he appointed a committee to make a study.

See New Deal Support.
Rumors that the New Deal, if returned to power in November, contemplates further encouragement to the co-operatives have been current in the nation's capital for many months but never have been confirmed.

Moving in the face of this situation, the chamber named a committee to study the problem. Tonight it declared:

"It is improper for governmental agencies to extend preferential treatment, by means of tax exemption, financing, or other aid, to consumers' co-operatives since such enterprises are but another form of competitive force seeking to win the support and patronage of the American consumer."

"The committee believes that consumers' co-operatives should be required to progress on the basis of their own merits."

Preferential treatment has been extended to co-operatives under federal and some state tax laws since these enterprises came into existence years ago. In the case of government taxation the validity of the action never has been seriously questioned nor opposed by private operators. It is estimated that there are now about 1,800 consumers' co-operative societies, of which about 96 per cent are engaged primarily in selling gasoline and motor oil and 34 per cent in retail store activities.

Development of the consumers' co-operative establishments to date has occurred largely in rural and small urban communities and, the committee found, embrace less than 1 per cent of the nation's population at present. In Great Britain the figure exceeds 15 per cent.

Small family budgets during the depression and other inducements encouraged the spread of the co-operative movement from 1929 to 1936 and business leaders now regard it as a definite competitive threat in some sections.

Co-op Education.
"Aside from their business operations," said the committee, "consumers' co-operatives actively foster the spread of principles of co-operation through development of extensive educational programs. In one state a law has been placed upon the statute books requiring that instruction shall be given in the state's public schools regarding the principles of co-operation."

The granting of tax exemptions to the co-operatives and promotion of the co-operative form of enterprise by governmental agencies, is "of most concern" to businessmen, the committee reported. It added that the chief argument in favor of co-operatives is that they are conducted more economically than are private enterprises and added:

"Consumers' co-operatives have not yet conclusively demonstrated their ability to reduce costs of distribution and manufacture... even taking into account patronage rebates which have been given, the reduction in prices to members of the co-operatives has been slight."

The committee closed with a warning that active promotion of the co-operative movement by public bodies would wipe out "thousands of merchants" throughout the country.

PARAGUAY TO FORCE ABLE-BODIED TO WORK

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 4.—(AP)—All able-bodied men will have to work in Paraguay and Bolivia in the future.

Unlike many nations, in which millions are without jobs against their will, South America's two underdeveloped inland countries have been afflicted with thousands of men who don't want to work.

Yesterday President Rafael Franco, of Paraguay, signed a law making work compulsory for all healthy men. President David Toro, of Bolivia, decreed a similar measure less than three months ago.

AMERICAN LABOR BODY WILL PREPARE REPORT

Little Chance of New Peace
Efforts With Lewis
Seen.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The internal struggle threatening schism in America's largest labor organizations comes before the American Federation of Labor council Tuesday with leaders of that group foreseeing little chance of any new peace efforts.

Although the council probably will take no further decisions in the controversy between the federation and John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization at its session, it is confronted with the task of drafting a report to the federation's convention at Tampa, Fla., November 16.

The situation was precipitated last month when the 10 unions supporting the C. I. O. were suspended from the federation on a charge of fomenting insurrection.

William Green, federation president, said the council probably would make no recommendations on the subject to the convention which is to decide the fate of the suspended unions. He explained that the facts would be collected, incorporated in the report and submitted to the convention for judgment.

I. T. U. Adopts Resolution.

Green said that the council probably would review the recent action taken by the International Typographical Union in voting to extend moral and financial support to the C. I. O. He contended that financial support could not be given by the I. T. U. without a referendum, which was not authorized.

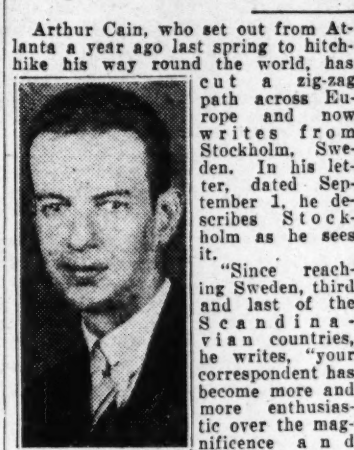

The A. F. of L. chief said he did not believe the printers' action placed them in the same category as members of the C. I. O.

Green said he knew of no peace overtures likely to be made by either group in connection with the council session. He said, however, the council "deplores the situation and would like very much to end it and create unity and solidarity in the movement."

Dubinsky Resigns.

The C. I. O. unions are not to be represented in the membership of the A. F. of L. council. David Dubinsky, president of the Ladies Garment Workers Union, was the last C. I. O. member. He resigned after the fed-

'Midnight Sun Is Like Fairyland,' Says Cain, Writing From Sweden

ARTHUR CAIN.

Arthur Cain, who set out from Atlanta a year ago last spring to hitchhike his way round the world, has cut a zig-zag path across Europe and now writes from Stockholm, Sweden. In his letter, dated September 1, he describes Stockholm as he sees it.

"Since reaching Sweden, third and last of the S e a n d i a v i a n countries, he writes, 'your correspondent has become more and more enthusiastic over the magnificence of the beauty of the ancient home of the vikings. Old Thor himself must have had a hand in the building of these spotless and picturesque cities.'"

Stockholm, called the Queen City of the Baltic, comes by her title righteously for no monarch could be more gracious or stately. No more gracious and regal attendants could be requested than Djursholm, Saltjobadan and Squir Sound—crown jewels of the Stockholm archipelago.

"Most thrilling of all the sights in the northern land is the midnight sun. From May through July the sun's miraculous colors are seen at midnight in this land where no sun at all shines during the winter months. No description of it could be accurate. My impression was similar to a small boy's dream of fairyland."

"But back to Stockholm. We borrowed 20 krona and began a tour of erations had condemned the C. I. O. for "insurrection."

At the root of the controversy are the conflicting beliefs in union organization. The industrial unionists, headed by Lewis and his committee, believe that mass production industries should be organized into one group. They contend, for example, that all steel workers should belong to a single union, instead of having divisions according to degree of skill. The A. F. of L. council has so far held out against industrial organizing in favor of a unionism of workers of various crafts within one industry.

Whether the suspension of the C. I. O. unions will become effective is up to the Tampa convention, at which representatives of the suspended groups will not be permitted to vote.

MAIL ORDER LOVER GOES TO ALIENISTS

1,300 Women Wanted To Marry Vet Who Advertised.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The 1,300 women who wanted to marry 42-year-old Samuel Frank indirectly brought the "mail order Lothario" under the observation of mental alienists tonight.

Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure ordered him held for physical and mental observation after he pleaded guilty to mail fraud charges yesterday.

Judge St. Sure at first refused to refer the case to a probation officer but changed his mind after hearing Frank's story from the witness stand.

Frank said his career as a mail order lover began when he wrote the governor of Texas, asking the name and address of some woman who would be a "home-loving, true-blue pal" for a mate.

Frank said he struck up correspondence with the women who answered.

Volunteer brides reported by the hundreds. One said she was 103 years old. One letter came from a girl of 11 and with it a note of consent from her parents.

Women all over the country began sending Frank money, asserted Assistant United States Attorney Valentine Hammack, who said Frank asked them to tide him over until he could collect his bonus money. One even borrowed $200 on her furniture and sent the money to Frank, the prosecutor asserted.

Frank denied this and said he received only $110 altogether.

He said he had been kicked by a mule at a camp during the World War and that as a result he wore a silver plate in his skull.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

A Delightful Cream Mask To Stimulate and Refresh

By MIGNON.

To start with, it's a delicate pink in color, and the texture, though fine and rich, is of such consistency that very little is used at a time. It's called a mask, although it's not one of those that dries out and has to be washed off.

To read what the manufacturer says, you are supposed to believe that it utterly banishes all traces of time and weariness, leaving the skin a miracle of blooming freshness. Well—I think that's going a little too far, but I'd probably have the same way if I'd made it, because it is one of the best creams on the market today.

You cleanse your face first, then you cover your throat and face with a generous layer of this cream. Then—if you have the time—you lie down on your back for 20 minutes and let the cream do its work. It will not dry, it will not smart, or in any way irritate the face, but you will be amazed to find, when you take tissues to wipe it off, that there is practically none of it left. You may think the price a little steep, but when you consider what it will cost you if you go to a beauty parlor and get a facial, I really don't think it's bad.

The jar isn't so large, and one on the same size filled with cream of a different texture wouldn't last nearly as long. You don't use it as you would any other nourishing cream, twice a day, but you use it as a treatment, which seems to make it very reasonably priced.

Last, but not least, it has fragrance like that emanating from a rose garden after a light shower.

If you wish to know the name of the product mentioned above, phone MIGNON at The Constitution. Do not write unless you live outside the city, in which case, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

her jars cold, set them away to stand for at least two months before she opened them.

Pickled Onions & Beans

Nancy usually made a few jars of pickled onions. On the whole she thought it was a waste of time because such excellent pickled onions can be purchased, but custom dies hard and she put up a small amount. She chose onions no larger than one-half inch in diameter. These were peeled, an almost endless job. Then she covered them with fresh water, let them stand for a day. She drained them and put them in a brine made by combining one pound of salt with two quarts of water. The onions stayed in for four days, then she drained them and put them in warm water for 10 minutes. Now they are put in cold water for two hours, drain, packed into clean jars and covered with a cold pickling vinegar made by mixing one quart vinegar, two teaspoons celery seed, four tablespoons grated horseradish, one-half cup sugar, two teaspoons each of stick cinnamon, and of mustard seed, and a little whole allspice. In packing the onions in the jar one of the tiny hot red peppers which are found dried in the mixed pickling spice may be inserted near the top of the jar. Nancy sealed

NUMBER 904—You get much pleasure from agreeable home conditions and you will evolve a plan to build and maintain a home. You are an excellent host or hostess and take a delight in entertaining. A parent, employer, or superior is likely to thrust some responsibility upon you or your work may get heavier than usual, but you will live up to what is expected and it will prove of future advantage to you.

NUMBER 1109—Give special care to your diet and avoid worrying and anxiety. You are proficient in your work and should get recognition. Notwithstanding your unusual ability, you are easily discouraged and sometimes abandon big undertakings. Do not hesitate to undertake anything that comes along that seems to offer advancement for you, as you are capable of executing it. Other people may show a tendency to forget promises to you, so get them in writing instead of verbally.

NUMBER 112—You are kind-hearted and generous and prone to take the misfortunes of others too seriously. Do not try to spread your efforts in too many directions, but settle down to one or possibly two things, which will contribute to a prosperous and useful existence. You will feel like expanding but you should be careful to avoid over-expansion or inflation.

NUMBER 111—You are sometimes attracted to those who do not appreciate your refined and sensitive qualities, so there may be some misunderstanding with friends. Choose your friends for their intellectual, progressive and artistic qualities.

Barbecue Invitations Are Issued By Clays Original and Clever

By Sally Forth.

THE spectacular invitations issued by the Ryburn Clays to a party at which they will be hosts next Sunday at their country home on the Chattahoochee river, are too original and clever to omit comment by Sally. Sounding the patriotic note of red, white and blue the invitations, which resemble huge posters, are printed in these shades. The top line, in bold, blue letters reads "Sunday, October 11, The Ryburn Clays Are Pitching a Big Party and Want You to Come. Honoring Dorothy Shivers, Clare Haverly, Rosemary Manry, Elkin Goddard. We Start at 2 P. M.—We Finish—Who Cares When?"

Whether the masculine guests will attend the party as stags or be some belle's escort is designated in one corner of the invitation in the following manner: "You are to bring ———. You are to come stags." The name of the young lady fills in the blank space of those fortunate enough to be assigned dates for this merry occasion.

The following directions to in blue letters on an enormous red arrow under the following caption: "There are several ways to get to The Ryburn Clays' rustic retreat on the banks of the historic and famed Chattahoochee. Weather permitting, many will drive out to Roswell and swim leisurely down the Chattahoochee to our place. More perchance will motor—so let's follow these simple directions: Jog, amble, or dash (according to one's taste and haste) out to Buckhead. Good! Now are you there?"

"Our motorcade now proceeds straight out Roswell road, noting the glorious scenery and homes of friends, until we reach Spaulding drive. Don't detour on any short roads for any reason whatsoever. Your speedometer will read about nine miles if you set it at zero at Buckhead. Turn right off Roswell road into Spaulding drive and continue merrily for about four or five miles. The road makes beautiful curves, but, persevere, follow the pavement and you will soon come to two handsome white posts and a white fence. Now are you there? Okay!—then turn in left to The Ryburn Clays."

The following plans for the party are listed under the heading of "Doing Things Like These in a Big Way. Frinstance: BARBECUE—TENNIS—DANCING—FISHING—HORSEBACK RIDING—HORSE SHOE HEAVING and Other Thrilling and Popular Pastimes." The invitation closes with the tri-but very true expression when applied to any affair at which the Ryburn Clays are hostess: "A Big Time Will Be Had by All."

OPEN houses, teas, luncheons, thrills on the loopy loops at Lakewood and formal dinners have been enjoyed by lucky rushes of the Phi Pi sorority during the past week. One of the most attractive parties given was the tea at which Julia Block was hostess Thursday at her home on Peachtree street.

Everybody was exclaiming over the intriguing mints that Julia served, which had catchy phrases written on them. The mints carried out the Phi Pi colors, and were yellow, inscribed in purple. "Some read, 'Come with us,' 'Go Phi Pi,' 'We want you,' and similar sentences, featuring the 'rushing' theme.

There were several hundred prominent young Phi Pi socialites present, including "old" members who had been enthusiastic sorority members in their high school days.

DEBUTANTE EMILY EVINS, of the shining blond and halo braid, had a wonderful time on her recent visit to her sister, Mrs. Henry Cooper, at Newport, R. I. One day there was great excitement at the fashionable resort, as a French ship docked there. Officers of the ship were welcomed by members of the colony, and were entertained at an elaborate dinner one evening. Each couple took a French officer into their care, and introduced him to the other guests.

One of the young foreign officers could not speak a word of English, and the couple to whose keeping he had been assigned, taught him enough English to receive introductions. But Emily Post's conventional "How do you do?" was not included in their lesson. Instead, the unsuspecting Frenchman was taught to say, "How'ya, Toots?" "O. K. Babe," and other low-brow phrases.

His first opportunity to use this newly acquired knowledge of the American language was an introduction to an important dowager. Clicking his heels together, and bowing low over her hand, he murmured, "How'ya Toots?" An expression mingled with horror and utter disgust spread over the face of the haughty socialite, as she turned coldly away. Similar experiences confronted the bewildered Frenchman, for everyone he met was entirely without a sense of humor. All of this much to the delight of the conspirators and their friends.

Kirkwood League To Give Program

The initial fall issue of the Cotton Blossom, publication of the Atlanta Junior League, makes its appearance today bedecked in a handsome new cover and enlarged to 12 pages and filled with current news of Junior League activities and several feature stories, cleverly illustrated by Cecil Holleran, art director of The Atlanta Constitution.

Edited by Mrs. Albert Howell Jr., assisted by Miss Louise Stewart, Mrs. Frances Brown and Mrs. Robert Sams, the publication in its new form will be issued four times each year in place of the usual nine with increased space devoted to features of a general nature and semi-sophisticated nature and articles of instructive value.

Mrs. Murdock Eiken, president of the Junior League, in her initial message outlines a full program of activity for the year, the details of which, she announces, will be discussed at the opening all meeting to be held at the Piedmont Driving Club Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Eiken, in defining the sphere of the Junior League, pointed out that the Junior League is an organization of young women with a similar purpose and interests and the league's power lies in its unity, enthusiasm and tremendous desire to be of service to the community.

An account of the benefits that have come from the gifts made last spring by the League showed that a number of pairs of braces for crippled children were bought with money given to the Scottish Rite hospital; a Girl Scout unit to provide facilities for 20 girls had been constructed at Civitas and the summer camp of the local Girl Scout council; a group of boys and girls had the benefit and pleasure of their first summer camp through the gift to the Family Welfare Society, and the League's gift of an oxygen tent had proven of great value to many young patients at Eggleston Hospital for Children.

Mrs. Gaston Gay announced in the issue a new course in journalism for the embryo writers of the League and Mrs. Colquitt Carter outlined the regulations governing the admission of new members, stating also that a concentrated orientation course in welfare and other subjects will be given early in November for new members and others interested in the work.

Featured in the issue is an interview with Margaret Mitchell by Miss Frances Brown, which revealed many of the devices to which the author of the current best-seller, "Gone With the Wind," resorted in compiling and checking the mass of data contained in her epic novel.

Another illustrated feature by Miss Louise Cramer, headed "Chimpunk Cafeteria," cleverly sets forth the tribulations of gardening among other odds and ends and other garden pests. Features by Mrs. Sam Evans Jr., and reports of committee chairman are also included in the highly interesting issue.

Miss Meador, Dr. Willingham Honored by Miss Ellen Rhodes

Brown, retiring president of the 1935-37 Debutante Club and the Theta Kappa Phi medical fraternity, Dr. Willingham and Dr. A. Rhodes, father of the hostess, being members of the latter organization.

Throughout the reception rooms of the home a profusion of garden flowers were used in the decorations, carrying out a color motif of autumnal shades. The table in the dining room was covered with an Irish lace cloth and was centered by a silver bowl filled with asters. At either end were silver candlesticks holding bronze tapers.

Forming a receiving line with the hostess were the honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Meador, parents of Miss Meador, and Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Rhodes parents of the hostess. Assisting in entertaining were Miss Belle Meador, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. H. Miskell, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. TARZAN AND THE MAYAN GODDESS No. 85

Ula Dale was breathing heavily, for she had followed Tarzan swiftly, hoping to aid him in the inevitable battle with their mysterious foe. Now she was amazed to find him clutching the throat of Merin Raglan, whom she had considered a kind, solicitous friend.

"There must be some mistake," she exclaimed. "I've known Mr. Raglan a long time. He's a gentleman. He can't be the man who stole the chart." Raglan smiled. His flattering attentions to Miss Dale in Africa and on the ship were serving him now to excellent advantage.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

"I'm just a harmless prospector," Raglan pleaded. "Maybe the man you're hunting took some cross trail." Tarzan admitted to himself that this might be true. Along the way he had seen several well-traveled trails by which his enemy might have eluded him.

Besides, Raglan did not answer the description Peco had given of his villainous master. Tarzan was a man of strict justice. He would rather let a culprit go free than punish an innocent man. So he decided to withhold final judgment. That was his misfortune!

Hitler Shows Farmers Big Army, Tells Them Sacrifices Necessary

HAMELIN, Germany, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A half million farmers gathered with Dictator Adolf Hitler today to give thanks to "dear Lord God for the years of work we have been permitted" and to hear their leader point out that labor with a mighty army.

The work for which they gave grateful thanks in a harvest festival; Hitler told the picturesquely costumed peasants from all parts of the reich, has not been in vain.

Germany's new military might, the dictator said, is the reason. And his army, with tanks, artillery, war planes emphasized this view with elaborate exercises in sham battle before the immense audience.

That army, Hitler intimated, carried out the Nazi version of the philosophy of the English Cromwell—

"Trust God but keep your powder dry."

Turning to the months ahead and Germany's determination to make itself independent of other nations' raw materials, Hitler stressed the necessity of individual sacrifice for the community if the community is to survive.

"Behold in me, my fellow citizens, a man who with ruthless determination will defend higher interests of the nation as based on reason and reality against individual egoism."

Explaining the necessity of maintaining a stable relationship between wages and prices he warned that both will continue under regulation of the government—that to "let wages and prices run at will" would end only as in other countries with devaluation of the currency.

"We, too could indulge in such maneuvers. . . . Two months later devaluing the German mark and swindling German savings bank depositors." But he said, that would not be Germany's way.

FOREIGN INVESTMENTS IN U. S. UP HALF BILLION

Commerce Department Survey World Conditions for Six Months.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The Commerce Department reported today a half billion dollars of foreign capital flowed into the United States during the first half of this year.

"Political and financial uncertainties" abroad were described as responsible for the flight of funds. Government economists added long-term investments—such as investments in American enterprises—increased.

The inflow of foreign capital was estimated at $496,000,000, or about $124,000,000 less than during the first six months last year.

Revising international trade, a world-wide improvement in domestic business and a sharp pick-up in tourist spending also were reported.

American exports rose $130,000,000 but purchases from other nations shot up rapidly, leaving a $9,000,000 excess of imports over exports.

Total merchandise exports were placed at $1,154,000,000 and imports at $1,163,000,000.

Americans spent about 10 per cent more on foreign travel. Although the survey did not cover the peak tourist months, it showed sight-seeing expenditures of $160,000,000. During the same period, foreign tourists spent $45,000,000 in the United States.

Improved business conditions in other countries resulted in the payment of $280,000,000 in interest and dividends on American investments abroad, the department reported.

These receipts were partially offset by payments to foreign creditors of $90,000,000, virtually all on long-term investments.

Department economists estimated immigrants sent about $45,000,000 back to relatives or friends in their parent countries. In addition, Americans sent abroad $14,000,000 in charitable, religious and educational contributions.

MAHATMA GANDHI NOW 67 YEARS OLD

Son Offers To Quit Drinking If Father Embraces Religion of Islam.

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The eldest son of Mahatma Gandhi today offered to quit drinking as a birthday present if his 67-year-old father would embrace the religion of Islam.

The offer was made by Harilal, who changed his name to Badulla when he became a Moslem last May, as the Mahatma's birthday was celebrated throughout India.

The diminutive leader of India's Nationalist movement himself was born of devout members of orthodox Hinduism and inherited from his Hindu parents much of his religious enthusiasm, which he directed in the campaign to gain political independence for India.

Badulla, or Harilal, in the past was a sharp critic of his father's activities but eventually the two effected a reconciliation.

Only recently recovered from a malarial attack, his birth anniversary today found the Mahatma weak but determined to carry on his study of disease-ridden villages in India.

Despite doctors' warnings last week that he might suffer a relapse if he did not seek a more healthful climate, he insisted he would return to the village of Segoon, all of whose 600 inhabitants suffer either malaria or dysentery.

Dorothy Farnum and Margaretta Cort, writers, asked an injunction against R-K Studios, Inc., to prevent further showing of the film and demanded a financial accounting.

Their complaint charged the story was submitted to the studio in 1935 and that the studio used material from it without authority.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY WILL CONVENE TODAY

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Delegates to the 36th annual conference of the British labor party, opening tomorrow, will be asked to spank the recalcitrant League of Youth back into line.

The conference also will be confronted, among domestic issues, with proposals for nationalizing the coal industry and the "national disgrace" of malnutrition; among international issues, with Britain's foreign policy and its rearmament program.

The League of Youth has bobbed up with ideas in discord with the parent party and the labor party's executive committee has warned "an atmosphere has been created which is not likely to attract young people."

JASPER W. ADAMS, 81, PASSES AT RESIDENCE

Jasper W. Adams, 81, resident of Atlanta for 50 years, died yesterday at his home at 1031 Euclid avenue, N. E., after a six-month illness.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock today at Spring Hill chapel, with Mrs. Luther Bridges and S. F. Lowe officiating. Interment will be in East View cemetery.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Leonard N. Walker and Mrs. Willie Pearl Strange, of Atlanta, and four grandchildren, Mrs. Paul C. McKinney, Mrs. Charles O. Owens, Mrs. Arthur Long and Leonard N. Walker junior.

He was a member of the Junior Order of American Mechanics and was a deputy marshal in municipal court from the time it was opened. A native of Lawrenceville, he moved to Atlanta 50 years ago.

AMEE FIRES 'FIANCE' OF DAUGHTER IN COUP

Evangelist and Son Name Selves Executive Body, Oust Model.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—(AP)—To blond Amee Semple McPherson went victory today in the family row in which her protesting daughter threatened for a time to upset the evangelist's control of Angelus Temple.

Amee and her son, Rolf, staged a midnight coup which relegated the daughter, Roberta Semple, to the background and cost Jacob Model, Miss Semple's attorney, his job as counsel for the temple.

Mrs. McPherson and her daughter declined comment today as the evangelist made her regular appearance at the pulpit of the Four-Square Gospel.

The evangelist moved quickly last night to bring to a climax the several days' old dispute with her daughter, assistant business manager of the temple, over its management.

Disregarding a request by Roberta that the meeting of the board of trustees be postponed because of her illness, Mrs. McPherson proceeded with her son, Rolf, third member of the board, to name themselves an executive board of two.

The new executive pair's first action was to terminate the contract of Jacob Model, reported fiance of Roberta, as lawyer for Angelus Temple, and to appoint in his stead Willard Andrews, former temple lawyer and recently Mrs. McPherson's personal attorney.

Their action included a new provision that two members of the board should constitute a quorum. Thus in future meetings they could overrule Roberta, Rolf's half-sister, whose objections to appointment of Giles Knight as business manager precipitated the quarrel.

INCREASE IN REVENUES BRINGS POSTAGE SLASH

CANBERRA, Oct. 3.—(UP)—Australia has increased its revenues to such an extent that the government has decided to revert to the 3-cent postage rate instead of the 4-cent rate adopted in 1930 as an emergency measure.

Since 1932 the commonwealth has made profits aggregating $31,681,270, all of which has been paid into consolidated revenue.

It is planned that mails will be carried to England next year at the 3-cent rate.
